Madison Valley Home Tour

Tucked into the breathtaking Madison Valley is a pleasing blend of historic and recently constructed homes ~ all restored or built with the nature of this special place in mind. The owners of six distinctive residences have agreed to open them to the public for a very worthwhile cause.

You are invited to tour these homes on Saturday ~ August 21, 2010

10am ~ 5pm
Tickets $25

This historic ranch was homesteaded in 1882. You will tour the main house, several barns, bunk houses and cookhouse as well as 3 cabins including a summer kitchen and the Roosevelt and Hoover cabins.

The Woodworth Mansion was built in 1900. The house has remained in the family passing on to a nephew then to a great nephew. Although updated, the owners have tried to stay as true as possible to the original structure. The house has its first cook stove and many other original furnishings.

Formerly an historic utility structure, this building was converted into a remarkable 7000+ sq. ft. modern residence. It features a massive iron and timber trussed staircase and a spring flowing beneath the patio.

This home built in 1900 is located on a small historic Montana estate near the Madison River. It serves as a haven for the weary traveler or sportsman.

This 12 year old home looks over 100 years old. Standing dead trees, rocks, homestead timbers, chicken coops and weathered fences were used in the construction. Inside you'll see taxidermy from several continents as well as a lap pool.

Ninety tons of indigenous Chief Joseph stone were used on this home's exterior and fireplaces so that it would better blend into the environment. Inside see the home theater and wine cellar and enjoy the 80 mile outside view.
